Unfinished Places: The Politics of (Re)making Cairo's Old Quarters

2016-11-10

the emerging politics of re making cairo s old quarters examines postcolonial planning practices that aimed to modernise cairo s urban spaces the author examines the expanding field of postcolonial urbanism by linking the state s political ideologies and systems of governance with methods of spatial representations that aimed to transform the urban realm in cairo adopting an interdisciplinary approach the study draws on planning history and politics to develop a distinctive account of postcolonial planning in cairo following egypt s 1952 revolution the book widely connects the ideological role of a different type of politicised urbanism practised during the days of nasser sadat and mubarak and the overarching policies institutions and attitudes involved in the visions for re building a new nation in egypt by examining the notion of remaking urban spaces the study interprets the ambitions and powers of state policies for improving the spatial qualities of cairo s old districts since the early 20th century these acts are situated in their spatial political and historical contexts of cairo s heterogeneous old quarters and urban spaces particularly the remaking of one of the city s older quarts named bulaq abul ela established during the ottoman rule in the thirteenth century it therefore writes in a chronological sequence a narrative through time and space connecting various layers of historical and contemporary political phases for remaking bulaq the endeavor is to explain this process from a spatial perspective in terms of the implications and consequences not only on places but also on the people s everyday practices by deeply investigating the problems and consequences the strengths and weaknesses and the state s reliability to achieve the remaking objectives the book reveals evidence that shifting forms of governance had anchored planning practices into a narrow path of creativity and responsive planning the central claim developed in this book is that disciplinary international relations ir is identifiable as both an advanced colonial practice and a postcolonial subject the starting problematic here issues from disciplinary ir s relative dearth of attention to indigenous peoples their knowledges and the distinctive ways of knowing that underwrite them the book begins by exploring how ir has internalized many of the enabling narratives of colonialism in the americas evinced most tellingly in its failure to take notice of indigenous peoples more fundamentally ir is read as a conduit for what the author terms the hegemonologue of the dominating society a knowing hegemonic western voice that owing to its universalist pretensions speaks its knowledge to the exclusion of all others the last of lawrence s travel books etruscan places is an ephemeral and vivid account replete with hauntingly evocative descriptions of the way of life of this once great civilisation the etruscan civilisation which flourished from the 8th until the 5th century bc in what is now tuscan is one of the most fascinating and mysterious in history an uninhibited elemental people the etruscans enthralled d h lawrence who craved their old wisdom the secret of their vivacity and love of life to him they represented the antithesis of everything he despised in the modern world perhaps because their spontaneity and naturalness struck a chord with his own quest for personal and artistic freedom so often censured or repressed lawrence approaches the enigmatic etruscans as a poet passionately and searchingly and so the reader is swept up in his luminous descriptions of a utopian world where dancing and feasting art and music were everything the exhilaration of lawrence in his etruscan adventures stands in stark contrast to his intimations of the darkness of mussolini s italy at a time when europe was beginning its inexorable drift towards tragedy
