The Student 2015-04-21 from the president of Wesleyan University an illuminating history of the student spanning from antiquity to the present in this sweeping book Michael S. Roth narrates a vivid and dynamic history of students exploring some of the principal models for learning that have developed in very different contexts from the sixth century BCE to the present beginning with the followers of Confucius Socrates and Jesus and moving to medieval apprentices students at enlightenment centers of learning and learners enrolled in twenty-first century universities he explores how students have been followers interlocutors disciples rebels and children becoming adults there are many ways to be a student Roth argues but at their core is developing the capacity to think for oneself by learning from others and thereby finding freedom in an age of machine learning this book celebrates the student who develops more than mastery cultivating curiosity judgment creativity and an ability to keep learning beyond formal schooling Roth shows how the student throughout history has been someone who interacts dynamically with the world absorbing its lessons and creatively responding to them

Teaching Victorian Literature in the Twenty-First Century 2023-11-03 this edited collection offers undergraduate literature instructors a guide to the pedagogy and teaching of Victorian literature in liberal arts classrooms with numerous essays focused on thematic course design this volume reflects the increasingly interdisciplinary nature of the literature classroom a section on genre provides suggestions on approaching individual works and discussing their influence on production of texts sections on digital humanities and out of the classroom approaches to Victorian literature reflect current practices and developing trends the concluding section offers three different versions of an ideal course each of which shows how thematic disciplinary genre and technological strands may be woven together in meaningful ways professors of introductory literature courses aimed at non-English majors to advanced seminars for majors will find accessible and innovative course ideas supplemented with a variety of versatile teaching materials including syllabi assignments and in-class activities

Web Writing 2021-02-04 the essays in writing respond to contemporary debates over the proper role of the internet in higher education steering a middle course between polarized attitudes that often dominate the conversation the authors argue for the wise integration of web tools into what the liberal arts does best writing across the curriculum all academic disciplines value clear and compelling prose whether that prose comes in the shape of a persuasive essay scientific report or creative expression the act of writing visually demonstrates how we think in original and critical ways and in ways that are deeper than those that can be taught or assessed by a computer furthermore learning to write well requires engaged readers who encourage and challenge us to revise our muddled first drafts and craft more distinctive and informed points of view indeed a new generation of web based tools for authoring annotating editing and publishing can dramatically enrich the writing process but doing so requires liberal arts educators to rethink why and how we teach this skill and to question those who blindly call for embracing or rejecting technology

Write to Be Read 2015-02-20 write to be read is meant to inspire educators to be designers of engaging curriculum specifically targeting ways to improve the teaching of writing in schools today students tend to write in response to literature whereas the focus of this resource is to help students write material fiction and non fiction that they want to read students often engage in writing that is more about pleasing the teacher or ticking a homework or assignment box this book challenges many assumptions with reference to traditional models for teaching writing a rich assortment of engaging examples are presented in this book to prompt educators to adapt and construct their own meaningful writing units of study
