it seems but fitting that i should preface this story of my life with a few words of introduction the desire to leave behind me some reflection of my life has been cherished by me for many years past but failing strength and increasing infirmities have prevented its accomplishment at my suggestion and with what assistance i have been able to render my son revd charles edward stow has compiled from my letters and journals this biography it is this true story of my own words and has therefore all the force of an autobiography it is perhaps much more accurate as to detail impression than is possible with any autobiography written later in life correspondence of lyman beecher she says i was between three and four years of age when our mother died and my personal recollections of her are therefore but few but the deep interest and veneration that she inspired in all who knew her were such that during all my childhood i was constantly hearing her spoken of and from one friend or another some incident or anecdote of her life was constantly being impressed upon me mother was one of those strong restful yet widely sympathetic natures in whom all around seemed to find comfort and repose the communion between her and my father was a peculiar one it was an intimacy throughout the whole range of their being there was no human mind in whose decisions he had greater confidence both intellectually and morally he regarded her as the better and stronger portion of himself and i remember hearing him say that after her death his first sensation was a sort of terror like that of a child suddenly shut out alone in the dark in my own childhood only two incidents of my mother twinkle like rays through the darkness one was of our all running and dancing out before her from the nursery to the sitting room one sabbath morning and her pleasant voice saying after us remember the sabbath day to keep it holy children up to this year i have always felt that i had no particular call to meddle with this subject but i feel now that the time is come when even a woman or a child who can speak a word for freedom and humanity is bound to speak thus did harriet beecher stowe announce her decision to begin work on what would become one of the most influential novels ever written the subject she had hesitated to meddle with was slavery and the novel of course was uncle tom s cabin still debated today for its portrayal of african americans and its unresolved place in the literary canon stowe s best known work was first published in weekly installments from june 5 1851 to april 1 1852 it caused such a stir in both the north and south and even in great britain that when stowe met president lincoln in 1862 he is said to have greeted her with the words so you are the little woman who wrote the book that created this great war in this landmark book the first full scale biography of harriet beecher stowe in over fifty years joan d hedrick tells the absorbing story of this gifted complex and contradictory woman hedrick takes readers into the multilayered world of nineteenth century morals and mores exploring the influence of then popular ideas of true womanhood on stowe s upbringing as a member of the outspoken beecher clan and her eventful life as a writer and shaper of public opinion who was also a mother of seven it offers a lively record of the flourishing parlor societies that launched and sustained stowe throughout the 44 years of her career and the harsh physical realities that governed so many women s lives the epidemics high infant mortality and often disastrous medical practices of the day are portrayed in moving detail against the backdrop of western expansion and the great social upheaval accompanying the abolitionist movement and the entry of women into public life here are stowe s public triumphs both before and after the civil war and the private tragedies that included the death of her adored eighteen month old son the drowning of another son and the alcohol and morphine addictions of two of her other children the daughter sister and wife of prominent ministers stowe channeled her anguish and her ambition into a socially acceptable anger on behalf of others transforming her private experience into powerful narratives that moved a nation magisterial in its breadth and rich in detail this definitive portrait explores the full measure of harriet beecher stowe s life and her contribution to american literature perceptive and engaging it in 1852 the united states of america was anything but united the divisive issue of slavery was roiling the nation which argued ad nauseam about the extension of slavery in new states as the nation pushed westward less than a decade later americans would fight each other in a civil war that would claim over half a million lives before it was all said and done that same year harriet beecher stowe an ardent abolitionist in the northeast published her famous anti slavery novel uncle tom s cabin which became an instant hit in the united states and spawned southern responses in literature that depicted slavery as a benign institution given the debate that uncle tom s cabin helped spawn historians have viewed stowe s classic as a harbinger of the civil war itself a famous anecdote holds that abraham lincoln himself upon meeting stowe described her as the little woman who wrote the book that started this great war while that quote is likely apocryphal the historical importance of uncle tom s cabin remains well understood today but the book is also remembered today for certain depictions and stereotypes of black people these stereotypes include the affable mammy the pickaninny stereotype of black children and of course an uncle tom which has ironically become a pejorative for a person who suffers dutifully for his boss
