the roman s ideal was strength and security of life and property the hebrew sought after peace peace in the heart as founded on a sense of jehovah s good providence and a moral conformity in conduct to his revealed will while the greek in art literature and even in morals made beauty his standard the roman stood for power domination and law and the hebrew for religion the hebrew indeed introduced into europe the first clear conception of religion as implied in monotheism and a rigidly defined moral law founded upon the will of jehovah the basis of morals among the latins was political among the greeks æsthetic and among the hebrews it was the revealed will of jehovah while the most important remains of hebrew literature are comprised in the scriptures known to us as the bible there exists also a voluminous mass of hebrew writings which are not included in the sacred canon these writings are of supreme importance and value and the selections which we have made from them in the present volume give a good idea of their interest beauty and subtlety of thought this book aims to reconceptualise the graeco roman military phenomenon of the war cry the term itself is inadequate for defining an ancient military practice that has been misrepresented in modern media and understudied by contemporary scholars gersbach introduces the term and paradigm battle expression to replace war cry which acknowledges the variety of undertakings visual and sonic that military forces from the graeco roman world presented on the battlefield before during or after battle the battle expression was sophisticated in nature it could include significant cultural song or dance that required high levels of rehearsal and execution conversely battle expression types demonstrated spontaneous wit and humour on the part of a military force that aimed to capitalise on the experiences of a battle these performances served a variety of purposes outside of instilling group cohesion among the participants and to intimidate the onlooking enemy this book associates the psychological dimension of warfare religious identity and military strategy supported by the high command to this practice in addition the author draws comparisons with later historical periods as well as the actions of modern day european football supporters in stadiums to reconstruct the atmosphere created by ancient military forces on the battlefield the war cry in the graeco roman world is suitable for students and scholars of classical studies particularly those interested in ancient warfare and military history as well as those studying the history of warfare more broadly

Sex and Slaughter in the Tent of Jael 1988 what happens when a foreigner takes over the throne of a powerful country like england in the case of william the conqueror the forced rule would have an impact that lasted centuries william was already duke of normandy part of modern day france in 1066 he along with thousands of norman soldiers invaded england and defeated king harold godwinson in the battle of hastings as a result of william s victory england s ties to scandinavia loosened and its political and cultural traditions became more tightly linked to france and the rest of mainland europe the norman conquest of england is one of world history s most pivotal moments

BOOKS 2022-04-30 hebrew literature contains some of the most profound and most influential productions of the human spirit it constitutes a potent factor in modern civilization and possesses merits which place it far above most other literatures of the world the common salutation of the hebrew is peace while that of the greeks is grace and that of the romans safety the greek sought after grace or intellectual and bodily perfection and the power of artistic accomplishment the roman s ideal was strength and security of life and property the hebrew sought after peace peace in the heart as founded on a sense of jehovah s good providence and a moral conformity in conduct to his revealed will while the greek in art literature and even in morals made beauty his standard the roman stood for power domination and law and the hebrew for religion the hebrew indeed introduced into europe the first clear conception of religion as implied in monotheism and a rigidly defined moral law founded upon the will of jehovah the basis of morals among the latins was political among the greeks æsthetic and among the hebrews it was the revealed will of jehovah while the most important remains of hebrew literature are comprised in the scriptures known to us as the bible there exists also a voluminous mass of hebrew writings which are not included in the sacred canon these writings are of supreme importance and value and the selections which we have made from them in the present volume give a good idea of their interest beauty and subtlety of thought

Hebrew-English Edition of the Babylonian Talmud /under the Editorship of I. Epstein 2008-12-24 this book aims to reconceptualise the graeco roman military phenomenon of the war cry the term itself is inadequate for defining an ancient military practice that has been misrepresented in modern media and understudied by contemporary scholars gersbach introduces the term and paradigm battle expression to replace war cry which acknowledges the variety of undertakings visual and sonic that military forces from the graeco roman world presented on the battlefield before during or after battle the battle expression was sophisticated in nature it could include significant cultural song or dance that required high levels of rehearsal and execution conversely battle expression types demonstrated spontaneous wit and humour on the part of a military force that aimed to capitalise on the experiences of a battle these performances served a variety of purposes outside of instilling group cohesion among the participants and to intimidate the onlooking enemy this book associates the psychological dimension of warfare religious identity and military strategy supported by the high command to this practice in addition the author draws comparisons with later historical periods as well as the actions of modern day european football supporters in stadiums to reconstruct the atmosphere created by ancient military forces on the battlefield the war cry in the graeco roman world is suitable for students and scholars of classical studies particularly those interested in ancient warfare and military history as well as those studying the history of warfare more broadly
