in book making take a trip down memory lane and revel in the adventures of little raz a child of the depression for the young reader it is a chance to live history through the eyes of a child struggling with little raz as he gets into and out of situations for the young reader it imparts knowledge of living in a world without electricity the teen ager will react to the frustrations and emotions of a young boy living poor working hard and forced to accept the responsibilities of adulthood at an early age the older reader will recall with nostalgia a gentler world of yesteryear do you recall memories of walking down a country road with the smell of new mown hay and honeysuckle wafting on the breezes it recalls the privations and hardships of a great depression and a world at war it recalls the window flags with their white stars representing young americans away from home on foreign battlefields while their country was reeling under the burden of wartime rationing every incident in amy mable is true it was experienced by the author in a long and exciting life treat yourself to a cup of nostalgia surely love is the greatest phenomenon across the world do you think love would truly be the best without a child in a family a child is a wonderful asset that realizes parental dreams a child transforms a man into a responsible person neither man nor woman would understand the meaning of life without a child a mother is the homemaker but wouldn't succeed without a child a child brings happiness to the parents a home is a sweet home in the presence of a child there is no substitute for a child nothing can bring as much happiness as she he does and there is no everlasting happiness in our lives without a child property and money can provide only ephemeral joys but a child brings perpetual happiness to the home parents are content if the child is physically healthy and mentally sound who would like a child who is abnormal by birth and who would not be unhappy to have a child with a congenital disease many would consider such a child quite a burden at least we understand the value of humanity and what can be worse than death although i am the father of a child with a congenital disease i never lost any hope for him but rather am much worried about death to keep him alive my wife and i have gone through strangest experiences and purgatory ultimately we sacrificed all that we had and put every effort to save our poor little son from that so called all trouncing death who in the world wouldn't want to have a child indeed every father and mother loves to have one i write this book as a history of my hard earned accomplishment after i underwent the utmost predicament that probably no one ever faced i share my lifetime of miseries so that every parent would understand their child better what one can do for another is the ultimate test of power what we can suffer for the other is the sterling test of love from the author of inconvenience gone on the early morning of march 6 1993 an intense fire broke out in a tiny nursery sixteen minutes later firefighters had extinguished the blaze only to reveal a room burned so severely everything was virtually unrecognizable then they were told to look for a baby what they discovered looked more like a monster from a horror film the small skull had been incinerated and the legs and arms were nothing more than charred stumps the only identifiable human feature was the baby's genitals covered in what remained of his diaper two people were home at the time the fire broke out the newborn's parents the arson squad declared the fire suspicious and the homeowner's insurance company hired investigators who determined the fire to indeed be arson the prosecutor wanted to dismiss the case but the arson unit had a newly appointed prosecutor who refused to do so was
