a wide ranging exploration of how music has influenced science through the ages from fifteenth century cosmology to twentieth century string theory in the natural science of ancient greece music formed the meeting place between numbers and perception for the next two millennia pesic tells us in music and the making of modern science liberal education connected music with arithmetic geometry and astronomy within a fourfold study the quadrivium peter pesic argues provocatively that music has had a formative effect on the development of modern science that music has been not just a charming accompaniment to thought but a conceptual force in its own right pesic explores a series of episodes in which music influenced science moments in which prior developments in music arguably affected subsequent aspects of natural science he describes encounters between harmony and fifteenth century cosmological controversies between musical initiatives and irrational numbers between vibrating bodies and the emergent electromagnetism he offers lively accounts of how newton applied the musical scale to define the colors in the spectrum how euler and others applied musical ideas to develop the wave theory of light and how a harmonium prepared max planck to find a quantum theory that reengaged the mathematics of vibration taken together these cases document the peculiar power of music its autonomous force as a stream of experience capable of stimulating insights different from those mediated by the verbal and the visual an innovative e book edition available for ios devices will allow sound examples to be played by a touch and shows the score in a moving line roger I estrange 1616 1704 was one of the most remarkable significant and colourful figures in seventeenth century england whilst there has been regular if often cursory scholarly interest in his activities as licenser and stuart apologist this is the first sustained book length study of the man for almost a century I estrange s engagement on the royalist side during the civil war and his energetic pamphleteering for the return of the king in the months preceding the restoration earned him a reputation as one of the most radical royalist apologists as licenser for the press under charles ii he was charged with preventing the printing and publication of dissenting writings his additional role as surveyor of the press authorised him to search the premises of printers and booksellers on the mere suspicion of such activity he was also a tireless pamphleteer journalist and controversialist in the conformist cause all of which made him the bête noire of whigs and non conformists this collection of essays by leading scholars of the period highlights the instrumental role I estrange played in the shaping of the political literary and print cultures of the restoration period taking an interdisciplinary approach the volume covers all the major aspects of his career as well as situating them in their broader historical and literary context by examining his career in this way the book offers insights that will prove of worth to political social religious and cultural historians as well as those interested in seventeenth century literary and book history

The Making of Women Artists in Victorian England 2016-08-02

when women were admitted to the royal academy schools in 1860 female art students gained a foothold in the most conservative art institution in england the royal female college of art the south kensington schools and the slade school of fine art also produced increasing numbers of women artists their entry into a male dominated art world altered the perspective of other artists and the public they came from disparate levels of society princess louise the fourth daughter of queen victoria studied sculpture at the national art training school yet they all shared ambition talent and courage analyzing their education and careers this book argues that the women who attended the art schools during the 1860s and 1870s including kate greenaway elizabeth butler helen allingham evelyn de morgan and henrietta rae produced work that would accommodate yet subtly challenge the orthodoxies of the fine art establishment without their contributions victorian art would be not simply the poorer but hardly recognizable to us today

Risk and Presidential Decision-making 2016-05-20

this book aims at gauging whether the nature of us foreign policy decision making has changed after the cold war as radically as a large body of literature seems to suggest and develops a new framework to interpret presidential decision making in foreign policy it locates the study of risk in us foreign policy in a wider intellectual landscape that draws on contemporary debates in historiography international relations and presidential studies based on developments in the health and environment literature the book identifies the president as the ultimate risk manager demonstrating how a president is called to perform a delicate balancing act between risks on the domestic political side and risks on the strategic international side every decision represents a risk vs risk trade off in which the management of one target risk leads to the development countervailing risks the book applies this framework to the study three major crises in us foreign policy the cuban missile crisis the seizure of the us embassy in tehran in 1979 and the massacre at srebrenica in 1995 each case study results from substantial archival research and over twenty interviews with policymakers and academics including former president jimmy carter and former senator bob dole this book is ideal for postgraduate researchers and academics in us foreign policy foreign policy decision making and the us presidency as well as departments and institutes dealing with the study of risk in the social sciences the case studies will also be of great use to undergraduate students

British Policy-Making and the Need for a Post-Brexit Policy Style 2018-04-25

this book revisits and re defines the policy style concept and explores the long standing debate in british political science concerning how best to characterise the british policy style the book highlights several trends that suggest that the british policy style has shifted towards the impositional end of the policy style spectrum bringing it more in line with the traditional westminster model of governing however these changes also reflect a more frenetic policy style which might increase the number of policy blunders and failures in british government unless means are found to access and manage the specialist expertise that interest groups possess

project report from the year 2016 in the subject chemistry other language english abstract this is a part two of the advance process design project part one was a group project in which we carried out a feasibility study of methanol to olefin mto plant the plant is an extension of an existing coal chemical complex in china which produces 1 000 000 tonnes of methanol from coal each year in order to become more competitive in the market we studied alternative routes of mto process and designed the most efficient least pollutant and safest plant the aim of this individual project is to cover a detailed design of the c2 splitter distillation column which is the final step in the mto process where ethylene and ethane are separated as ethylene is one of the most popular petrochemical product and the demand for the product is continuously increasing each year therefore to meet the customers demand the column was designed with 99 4 purity for the initial design calculation the operating pressure of the column was chosen as 24bar the diameter of the column was calculated to be around 1 66m for the stripping section which was suitable for the sieve plate design using the alche method the plate overall efficiency was obtained as 73 which was in the range of the distillation column efficiencies by using the plate efficiency the actual number of stages was obtained 53 stages with an overall height of the column as 35m at 24bar the condenser duty of the column was calculated to be 2 66mw and reboiler duty 2 43mw the design optimisation shows that as the pressure of the column increases the capital cost of the column also increases due to the increase in a number of actual stages and the reflux ratio mean taller and thicker column wall will be required to meet the right specification and to handle the high pressure of the column but with the increasing pressure the energy cost of the column decreases as less energy will be required to condense the overhead vapour the capital cost of the column outweighs the energy cost of the column therefore the column total cost increases with the increase in column pressure the optimum pressure for the c2 splitter column was chosen as 10bar the reason being low reflux ratio and less number of stages will be required meaning the less capital cost of the column contending that japan s industrial and imperial revolutions were also geographical revolutions kären wigen s interdisciplinary study analyzes the changing spatial order of the countryside in early modern japan her focus the ina valley served as a gateway to the mountainous interior of central japan using methods drawn from historical geography and economic development wigen maps the valley s changes from a region of small settlements linked in an autonomous economic zone to its transformation into a peripheral part of the global silk trade dependent on the state yet the processes that brought these changes industrial growth and political centralization were crucial to japan s rise to imperial power wigen s elucidation of this makes her book compelling reading for a broad audience
