this book offers a comparative perspective on northern and southern european laws and customs concerning women s property and economic rights by focusing on both northern and southern european societies these studies analyse the consequences of different juridical frameworks and norms on the development of the economic roles of men and women this volume is divided into three parts the first laws presents general outlines related to some european regions the second family strategies or marital economies questions the potential conflict between the economic interests of the married couple and those of the lineage within the nobility finally the third part of the book inside the urban economy focuses on economic and work activities of middle and lower classes in the urban environment the assorted and rich panorama offered by the history of the legislation on women s economic rights shows that similarities and differences run through europe in such a way that the north south model looks very stereotyped while this approach calls into question classical geographical and cultural maps and well established chronologies it encourages a reconsideration of european history according to a cross boundaries perspective by drawing on a wide range of social economic and cultural european contexts from the late medieval to early modern age to the nineteenth century and including the middle and lower classes especially artisans merchants and traders as well as the economic practices and norms of the upper middle class and aristocracy this book will be of interest to economic and social historians sociologists of health gender and sexuality and economists getting divorced and remarried are now common practices in european societies even if the rules differ from one country to the next civil marriage law still echoes religious marriage law which for centuries determined which persons could enter into marriage with each other and how validly contracted marriages could be ended religions and denominations also had different regulations regarding whether a divorce only ended marital obligations or also permitted remarriage during the lifetime of the divorced spouse this book deals with predominantly handwritten documents of divorce proceedings from the british isles to western central and southeastern europe and from 1600 to the 1930s the praxeological analysis reveals the arguments and strategies put forward to obtain or prevent divorce as well as the social and above all economic conditions and arrangements connected with divorce the contributions break new ground by combining previously often separate fields of research and regions of investigation it makes clear that the gender order doesn't always run along religious lines as was too often assumed this book will be of interest to all scholars and students of economic social religious cultural legal and gender history as well as gender and well being in a broader sense this wide ranging theme takes braudel s concept of the mediterranean as its starting point braudel s vision of an enclosed sea as a geographical opportunity for economic integration between nations with different religions languages and ethnicities and political bodies still functions as a model for studies on a wide range of contexts the goal of the 50th study week was to go beyond the study of individual systems in isolation and to combine instead different analysis of open and enclosed seas or coastal areas in order to understand the integration role played by maritime connections in europe since in pre industrial civilizations water transport was easier than land transport the time has come to bring attention to the way these relationship networks operated both on a european level and with asian and north african trade partners this volume starts from the great research traditions which have however rarely been integrated on a larger and continental scale and analyses them on either a regional or thematic basis immanuel wallerstein has developed braudel s concept by conceptualising its intercultural and transnational dimensions and its role in the system of labour he called it a world system not because it involves the whole world but because it is larger than any legally defined political unit and it is a world economy because the base link between the different parts of the system has an economic nature the various regional research aspects and traditions have been linked together in a coherent approach which aims at evaluating what geographical nautical technical economic legal social and cultural elements influenced the emergence of the various regional networks and how these worked the nature and role of seaports as nodal points of sea routes and of their hinterland through rivers canals and roads the commercial and personal ties between merchants and shipowners in various ports how regional networks connected with each other and how over time they ended up integrating into larger units how private networks initially between merchant and seafarer organizations ended up dealing with local authorities and after their growth with states and empires in order to protect their interests the study of the textile sector has always been central to economic history from reconstructions of the dynamic growth in the medieval wool industry to the rise of silk and light and mixed fabrics in the modern era to the driving role of cotton in the industrialisation process although the dynamics of textile manufacturing are closely linked to the transformations of fashion economic history has long neglected its role as a factor in economic change treating it primarily as a kind of exogenous catalyst this book makes a decisive contribution to the understanding of a fundamental transformation the consequences of which are projected into contemporary society but which matured in pre industrial times the advent of fashion
